Exhibition and Sponsoring

28 May – 1st June 2018
in Marseille, France

Welcome to the 15th International Conference on Space Operations

After successful events all over the world, the SpaceOps Conference returns to France. It will be held in the Palais du Pharo, an exceptional venue in the city centre of Marseille.

For more than 25 years, the International Conference on Space Operations has been the technical forum for the space operations community that addresses state-of-the-art operations principles, methods and tools. The scope is intended to cover all spaceflight missions, including human and robotic, near Earth and deep space.

It brings together experts in Space Operations: missions and ground segment designers, industry, mission operators, engineers in charge of mission logistics support, technical and administrations managers, etc. to discuss and promote technical concepts, emerging methodologies and measures for advanced Space Operations.

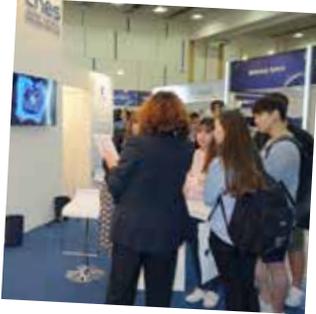

It attracts technologists, scientists, managers and experts from space agencies, academia, space-related industry and military organizations.

The SpaceOps 2018 Conference will be an opportunity to increase awareness of your company. This brochure aims at suggesting opportunities to achieve your networking goals over this 5-day event.

Whether through exhibiting or sponsoring, the SpaceOps provides excellent opportunities to promote your company, products and services.
